QEA, LLC

QEA was looking to overhaul our web site, to provide an attractive appearance, easily navigated content, and a easily maintainable site. We are a small consulting firm of scientists and engineers and needed a site that conveyed our expertise in a variety of fields efficiently and attractively. Brigham Pendleton listened to our needs and quickly transformed our embryonic ideas into a solid design concept with an appearance, layout and navigation scheme that exceeded our expectations and achieved our goals.

QEA needed a site that we could easily maintain and modify without an extensive knowledge of web site programming. Olive Development turned the web design concepts into a site that is elegant to use and easy to maintain. In addition, Olive Development delivered a highly functional and extensible web-based content management system (CMS) that has allowed staff at our various offices to add and update content quickly and easily. The password-protected extranet module has given us a terrific tool for sharing documents with our clients and contractors. Olive has provided responsive service and support whenever we needed an upgrade or wanted a modification.

Brigham Pendleton Design and Olive Development are a pleasure to work with: they listen, advise, and are responsive to the needs of the client. They deliver professional results efficiently. We continue to received positive feedback from clients visitors to our web site.
