We needed a website with plenty of “wow” power that could deliver our messages to the community and serve as a portal for interaction. Many school advisory units have basic, “blah” sites. Our’s is a “wow” site and we love it. Brigham Pendleton was able to deliver and award winning website that not only met our goals, but came in on budget and in record time.

From the beginning of the process he was involved and made sure that we got what we wanted – and what we needed. Brigham’s personal investment in the design, development and implementation of our site was exactly the touch that we needed. His design has remained current and the Olive Development tool has made content management so easy that even our elementary school children are updating the content with ease.
